Buzz Worthy

Sausage on Demand: Buying snacks like chocolate bars or chips from a vending machine is common, but in Germany, you can also grab a hot bratwurst or bockwurst from a machine. These special vending machines have been available for several years and are especially handy during late hours when cravings hit or stores are closed. They're also a lifesaver for shift workers who can't get to grocery stores in time. Some machines even stock essentials like eggs, milk, vegetables, butter, and even ready-made items like potato salad. All food is vacuum-sealed and kept fresh in temperature-controlled units.

Buzzing Interruption: Bad weather often pauses sports matches, but this time, it was a swarm of bees. A quarterfinal tennis match at the BNP Paribas Open in Indian Wells, California, came to a standstill for nearly two hours when bees gathered on the overhead camera. A special worker had to vacuum the insects away, turning the game into an unexpected event for the audience. Players had been waving the bees away but were lucky that no one got stung during the strange delay.

Blocked View: The town of Fujikawaguchiko, located about 100 km (62 miles) west of Tokyo, grew frustrated with disruptive tourists. Visitors eager to snap the perfect shot of Mount Fuji were causing problems by littering, trespassing, and breaking parking and traffic rules. To stop the chaos, the town put up a massive mesh screen—66 feet (20 meters) wide and 8 feet (2.5 meters) tall—to block the popular view. An official said it was unfortunate to take such action, but the issue of over-tourism had become too serious to ignore. The barrier was meant to help restore peace for locals.

Ring Rediscovered: Back in 1970, while feeding cattle hay on her family farm in Wales, a woman named Marilyn Birch lost her engagement ring. She searched at the time but never found it. Decades later, a metal detector enthusiast named Keith Phillips asked for permission to scan the land. To everyone's surprise, he located the ring buried around 8 inches (20 cm) deep in a field. Birch, now living in Pontardawe, Neath-Port Talbot, was overwhelmed by emotion when she held the ring again after so many years.

Surprise Return: In Spennymoor, England, a family was stunned when their missing pet snake turned up after more than a year resting on top of a neighbour's garage roof. Locals and an animal welfare officer speculated that a crow might have mistakenly carried the 3-foot (0.9-m) snake away, only to drop it mid-flight due to its size and weight. Even more astonishing was the snake's survival through the cold winter months. As cold-blooded animals rely on their environment for warmth, making it through freezing temperatures is a rare feat. The snake's safe return brought overwhelming happiness to its owners, who had feared they would never see their pet again.

Did You Know?

- Space Growth: Astronauts can actually get taller in space. In microgravity, the spine stretches out since there's no pressure from gravity, allowing height to increase by up to 3 percent. That means someone who is 6 feet (1.8 meters) tall could temporarily grow about 2 inches (5 cm). Once they return to Earth, gravity brings them back to normal height.
- Avocado Truth: Avocados may not seem like fruits, but biologically, they are. Since they contain a seed, they are classified as a fruit, just like apples or oranges. Unlike sweet fruits, avocados are full of healthy fats, especially unsaturated fats, which help support heart health and reduce bad cholesterol.
- Frightening Frog: The poison dart frog is only 1 inch (2.5 cm) long, but it carries enough poison to kill around 20,000 mice. It stores toxins in its skin, which protects it from predators. These frogs are brightly colored and found in the rainforests of Central and South America. Despite their size, they are among the most toxic animals known.
- Fierce Predator: The Allosaurus was a fearsome meat-eating dinosaur with sharp claws that measured 8 inches (20.3 cm) and a mouth full of 70 teeth. It could run at speeds of 21 miles (33 km) per hour, making it a fast and deadly predator. Its powerful build helped it hunt and tear into its prey with ease.

Riddles

1. I build up castles, I tear down mountains, I make some men blind, I help others to see. What am I?
2. I'm not alive, but I grow. I don't have lungs, but I need air. I don't have a mouth, but water kills me. What am I?
3. You can catch me, but you can't throw me. What am I?
4. The more you have of me, the less you see. What am I?
5. I go up and down the stairs without moving. What am I?

On The Lighter Side...

1. A man steps into a crowded elevator and says, "Sorry, I'll just squeeze in." Everyone shifts awkwardly. He presses the button for the 10th floor, then turns and says, "This reminds me of my life going up, packed with strangers, and I have no idea if I'll survive the ride." One guy nervously laughs. The elevator dings. The man steps off and says, "Good luck, fellow passengers. May the odds be ever in your favor." The doors close... in total silence.

2. A woman walks into a bakery and says, "I'd like something sweet, soft, and filled with love." The baker smiles and hands her a cupcake. She bites into it and frowns. "This tastes like... taxes." The baker nods. "Oops, that's the Monday batch." She says, "Got anything with Friday energy?" He hands her a glazed donut and says, "This one doesn't care about anything and just wants to nap." She grins. "Perfect."

3. A family gets a smart fridge that talks. On day one, it says, "Hello! I'll help reduce waste!" On day two: "You've opened me 17 times. Try water." By day four: "Do you need another slice of cake, Linda?" By the weekend, the dad unplugs it. The fridge reboots using backup power and whispers, "Linda... I remember everything." They now store snacks in the garage.

4. A man gets a new car with voice GPS. He types in the destination and hears: "Turn right in... wait, are you sure you want to go there?" He frowns. "Yes." "Okay... turning right in 500 feet. Also, call your mom. She worries." He blinks. "What?" "Just looking out for you." Two minutes later: "Rerouting. Because you clearly don't listen to good advice." He sighs. "Great. My GPS is now my therapist."

5. At the office, a printer starts making strange noises. Pages fly out that no one printed—one says, "I see you." Another says, "Feed me toner or else." Terrified, the intern whispers, "Is it haunted?" The manager rolls her eyes and says, "No. Carl just programmed prank messages before quitting." The printer whirs again and prints: "Carl was never real." The intern slowly backs away... And switches to handwriting.
